

Writing a very short script.

As explored in the main section of text, a short film script has to be especially short compared to that of a feature length script. In order to develop these skills, the task for this activity is to use some of the ideas, characters and perhaps even dialogue from previous activities and use them to create a short script of no more than 3 pages in total. The script MUST feature the expected layout and presentational devices and contain one page that establishes a beginning, a middle page that encompasses the narrative developing and a final page that creates a satisfactory ending.
